Municipal Elections All Over Ireland Took Place Tuesday.

New Area Gives the Capital City Five Thousand More Electors.

Twenty Wards Divided Between North and South Sides.

NATIONALISTS ARE WELL ORGANIZED

The municipal elections all over Ireland took place Tuesday, January 15. So far as Dublin was concerned the greatest interest centered in this year's election was chiefly on account of the fact that, owing to the extension of the city boundaries, five new wards are being added to the city area, for which twenty new members will be elected. This will increase the members of the Corporation from sixty, as it stands at present, to eighty, and to afford adequate accommodation for this number the Council chamber is to be further extended.

The "added area," as it is familiarly known, will mean an addition of 5,000 electors to the city burgess-roll, an addition of 4,125 acres to the city area, an addition in population of 26,000 and in valuation of close on £100,000. Kilmalham has a burgess-roll of 1,671 and will consist of only one ward, which will be represented by an Alderman and three Councillors in the new corporation. Drumcondra Urban District Council will be divided into two wards—the Drumcondra ward and Glasnevin ward, with the roll of 1,295 and 1,050 electors respectively, and thus the existing urban district of Drumcondra will be represented on the corporation by two Aldermen and six Councillors. Clontarf has only a burgess-roll of 1,471 electors, but it will also have two Aldermen and six Councillors in the new corporation—being placed in the same position as Drumcondra with 2,352 electors, and it will have double the representation of Kilmalham with 1,671. Clontarf will be divided into two wards, the East and West wards, containing 610 and 862 electors respectively. The city is at present divided into fifteen wards, nine on the north side and six on the south, but the embodied city will comprise twenty wards evenly divided between the north and south sides. Only one member in each ward in the city will retire this year by rotation, so that elections will take place in Dublin for fifteen vacancies in the city proper and twenty in the incoming townships.

The Aldermen on the north side will, by agreement, retire in 1902 and on the south side in 1904.

The United Irish League will play a very important part in the forthcoming elections, and in almost every ward the National organization has put forward candidates in opposition to the retiring members who are not in sympathy with the programme, or who voted for the address to the Queen. The following is a summary of the candidates and the retiring members, with opinions from the Dublin press just before the election:

In the Arran Quay ward the retiring member is Richard Jones. He has been selected by the Ward Registration Association, and will again seek re-election, but he is being opposed by the candidate of the United Irish League, which is organizing a very strong and determined opposition to the sitting member.

In the Inns Quay ward E. L. Richardson, Labor member, is retiring, and will seek re-election, but he is being opposed by a candidate put forward by the Labor Electoral Association in the person of Mr. Fitzpatrick. Richardson is a delegate to the Trades Council, and that body has endorsed the candidature; but the Labor Electoral Association, with which Richardson has been for months at loggerheads, has refused to do so, and the candidate of that association has also been adopted by the ward branch of the United Irish League.

In the Mountjoy ward W. J. Leahy, another Labor representative, goes out of office this time. He is seeking re-election and no opposition has yet been spoken of.

John Long retires in the North City ward, and owing to it has been stated, to some difference he has had with the officials of the ward branch of United Irish League, he is not seeking re-election. The League has adopted Solicitor Crowley as its candidate, and the only other candidate yet spoken of in the ward is M'Loughlin, who is being run by the Socialist party.

In the North Dock ward E. Holohan will not seek re-election. Two candidates at least are already in the field for the vacancy—namely John Derwin, who has been selected by the branch of the League and National Registration Association; and T. Byrne, Donaghy, who is also well known in the ward, and who will also be supported by the extreme Nationalists.

Dr. Kennedy is the retiring member in the Rotunda ward, and it is understood he will seek re-election. A strong candidate will oppose him in the person of Thomas McAuley, who is put forward by the United Irish League.

In the Fitzwilliam ward the Lord

Mayor is the retiring candidate. There is pretty sure to be a Nationalist candidate put up in opposition to his lordship, but as yet no name has been mentioned publicly. It is believed, however, that the Lord Mayor will be returned, as his influence in the ward is very great.

Daniel Tallon, ex-Lord Mayor, goes out of office in the Mansion House ward, and will seek re-election. He will be opposed by P. J. Geoghegan.

In the Merchants' Quay ward Michael M'Govern is the retiring Councillor. It is doubtful if he will seek re-election, but in the event of his doing so he will be opposed by Mr. Vaughan, who has been declared the selected candidate of the ward branch of the League, M'Govern being defeated by a narrow majority at the recent public meeting.

Andrew Beattie, a Conservative Councillor, retires in the Royal Exchange ward. All the other representatives of this ward in the corporation are Nationalists, and Beattie is now pretty certain to meet with opposition if he goes forward again. No Nationalist candidate has, however, been yet mentioned in connection with the vacancy.

In the South City ward George Macnie, Conservative, is the retiring member, and he is likely to be re-elected without opposition.

John Clancy goes out in the South Dock ward, and it is believed he will be again returned unopposed.

In Trinity ward no member retires owing to the fact that the Councillorship vacated by Gerald O'Reilly on his election to the Aldermanship of the ward a few months ago has not been filled up. Here there are a number of prospective Councillors in the field—namely T. J. Fitzgerald, who has the support of the Nationalist organizations in the ward; George T. Moore, who is getting a good deal of Nationalist and labor support; William Nolan, who is also a strong Nationalist candidate, and Richard Best, who is to run in the interest of the Conservatives.

In Usher's Quay ward Bernard Goran retires by rotation, and he is being opposed by Albert L. Altman, who has repeatedly contested other municipal elections unsuccessfully in the past. Altman announces that he is going forward in the interests of the League and Labor.

In the Wood Quay ward Francis McKenna retires, and will seek re-election. He has been adopted as the League candidate.

In the incoming townships of Drumcondra, Clontarf and Kilmalham the greatest interest is being taken in the election, and there is a host of candidates for municipal honors in each of the five wards.

The election of Mayor for 1901-1902 will, of course, have an important bearing on the question of who is to be Lord Mayor for the ensuing year. The present occupant of the civic chair will be a candidate for the Lord Mayoralty in the event of his re-election to the corporation, but at the present time even other names are mentioned in connection with the position, so that there is likely to be a contest for the Lord Mayoralty.

It may be taken for granted that the new corporation will be overwhelmingly Nationalist. Drumcondra and Glasnevin wards are Nationalist strongholds, but there is danger that one or two Conservative members may creep in owing to the Nationalist split and the superabundance of Nationalist candidates. In Clontarf, of course, there is a strong Conservative vote, and it is possible that a number of Conservatives will be returned. The results could not be fully made known before Thursday.

GOING AHEAD.

New Albany Hibernians Have Inaugurated a Building Fund.

The Hibernians of New Albany are more progressive than their brethren in most cities. Early last year they inaugurated measures for the creation of a building fund that have thus far proved very satisfactory, and today Division 1 has quite a snug sum set apart for that purpose.

The officers and members are from among the most enterprising business men and public spirited citizens of New Albany, and they decided to go to work while others were talking. After study and discussion it was decided that all moneys at any time in the treasury in excess of $500 should be placed in the building fund. The sum mentioned is always held intact for defraying current expenses and meeting sick and death benefits, and as its affairs are economically administered and the calls for sick and death benefits have been few it will be readily seen that the special fund is being rapidly swelled.

THINGS TO FORGET.

If you would increase your happiness and prolong your life, forget your neighbor's faults. Forget the slanders you have ever heard. Forget the temptations. Forget the fault-finding and give little thought to the cause which provoked it. Forget the peculiarities of your friends, and only remember the good points which makes you fond of them. Forget all personal quarrels or histories you may have heard by accident, and which, if repeated, would seem a thousand times worse than they are.

Blot out, as far as possible, all the disagreeableness of life. They will come, but they will grow larger when you remember them, and the constant thought of acts of meanness, or worse still malice, will only tend to make you more familiar with them. Obliterate everything disagreeable from yesterday. Start out with a clean sheet for today and write upon it for sweet memory's sake only those lovely things which are lovely and lovable.

EXCITING CONTEST.

Amusing Foot Race Between Well-Known Irish Sprinters.

For some time past there has been much feeling between the friends of Nic Sheridan and John Dillon, each side claiming its man was the fastest sprinter. Several futile attempts were made to decide the question, and it remained for Col. Pat Nelligan, who is known as the arbiter of all differences of opinion on Portland avenue and High street, to evolve a solution of the mooted question.

Pat bung up a purse, all to go to the winner, and both Nic and John readily entered the race, each confident of success. The distance was from High street to Portland avenue, along Nineteenth, and John Walsh was agreed upon as starter. Both Messrs. Sheridan and Dillon have many friends who were eager to back them, but the fact that those of the former happened to be in the majority led Col. Nelligan, who was a Sheridan man, to also indulge in a nice side bet. Dillon is not a lean man by any means, and naturally the advantage appeared on the side of his opponent. But that was where the surprise came in. Both were taken to High street and given a good send-off by Starter Walsh. For a distance Sheridan seemed an easy winner, but Dillon suddenly gave vent to a great burst of speed that landed him in front, which Sheridan made great effort to overcome but without avail, losing the race by a few feet.

The loser's friends declare that Dillon, who has since been entertaining his supporters with the proceeds of the purse, had been training for this event for some time past, otherwise he would have been beaten almost a block. However this may be, he now declares himself the champion runner of Portland.

FRANKFORT.

Successful Mission Conducted by Fathers Younan and Sullivan.

Lambert Council Installs Its Officers For Ensuing Year.

New Military Company to Be Known as Beckham Guards.

CAPITAL CITY NEWS AND GOSSIP

[Special Correspondence of the Kentucky Irish American.]

FRANKFORT, Jan. 18.—The Catholic mission conducted by Fathers Younan and Sullivan at the Church of the Good Shepherd closed Sunday night. It was the most successful in the history of the congregation, nearly 600 approaching holy communion during the week. The reverend gentlemen are of the Paulist order, and are the most learned and eloquent missionaries that ever visited this city. The impression they made upon Frankfort Catholics will remain a long time.

On Monday last a mission for non-Catholics was opened and large crowds of the separated brethren have been attending every night. This mission will close Sunday night and will doubtless prove as successful as that of the previous week. Father Younan, who is a native of India, speaks fluently seven different languages. Early next week he will give an illustrated lecture upon India, which will prove very entertaining and instructive to every one interested in that wonderful country.

The following are the officers installed at the regular meeting of Lambert Young Council for the present year:

Chaplain—Rev. Thomas Major.

President—M. A. Collins.
First Vice President—James Gibbons.
Second Vice President—C. J. Weitzel.
Recording Secretary—William Oller.

Financial Secretary—Frank Weitzel.
Treasurer—John A. Bristan.
Corresponding Secretary—John Dolan.
Marshal—William Lutkemeier.
Inside Sentinel—Charles Whitehead.
Outside Sentinel—William Mandelhr.
Executive Committee—William Gorman, C. E. Collins and C. Fuggazi.

Last week an impromptu dance was given at Young Men's Institute Hall in honor of Misses Daisy Oliver and Jessie O'Dell, two pretty and charming young ladies from Lawrenceburg, who have been the guests of Mrs. Neal on the South Side.

A class of new members is now being organized by Council 161, Y. M. I. A. committee composed of J. T. Dolan, W. A. Lutkemeier and D. J. McNamara has been appointed to organize the class, and in order to facilitate their efforts the initiation fee has been reduced. There are in Frankfort over fifty young men who are eligible for members of the Y. M. I. A., and there is no reason why a large class should not be formed. It is the intention of the council to greatly improve their rooms in the near future and make them the equal of any club rooms in Central Kentucky.

Jack Dolan, the popular young shoe clerk, returned Monday from a pleasant visit with friends in the country.

Another military organization was mustered into the State's service here last week. The new company will be known as the Beckham Guards. The commissioned officers selected are as follows:

Captain—F. L. Gordon.
First Lieutenant—Julian Kersey.
Second Lieutenant—W. A. Lutkemeier.
Regular drills will be held every Tuesday night, and non-commissioned officers will be appointed by Capt. Gordon this week. Capt. Gordon is one of the best military tacticians in the State Guard, having seen several years' service. Lieut. Kersey was Captain of the Frankfort volunteers during the late war with Spain, while Lieut. Lutkemeier has been a member of the State Guard for some time and has rapidly risen from private in the company recently mustered out to his present position. While Sergeant of the old company he endeared himself to his men, many of whom joined the new organization and elected him their Lieutenant.

J. S. Humphreys spent a few days in this city while on his way home to Georgetown.

Quite a number of Frankfort people anticipate going to Covington January 27 to attend the dedication of the new Catholic Cathedral, provided suitable arrangements can be made to secure a special train.

Several members of the local S. A. S. went to Georgetown last Sunday, and while there paid a visit to historic Cardome, conducted by the Sisters of the Visitation, where the usual cordial reception was tendered them.

Misses Daisy Oliver and Jessie O'Dell have returned to their homes after a delightful visit with relatives in Frankfort.

Lieut. Lutkemeier, of the Beckham Guards, spent Sunday very pleasantly in Lawrenceburg.

John Meagher, Jr., spent last Sunday at Stamping Ground. Rumor says there is quite an attraction for him in this quiet Scott county town.

The local members of the B. P. O. E. will give a minstrel performance composed entirely of home talent the latter part of February. This progressive and bustling young branch of the "best people on earth" now has over one hundred members in Frankfort and admits new members at almost every meeting.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

James Cooney, well known in the West End, suffered a very painful accident Thursday morning. Mr. Cooney is the foreman for the Falls City Transfer Company, and while handling a hoghead of tobacco at Ninth and Main streets the men allowed the heavy weight to fall on his hands, almost mashing them to a jelly. His injuries were dressed by Dr. Galvin, when he was removed to his home, 2107 High street. At first it was feared Cooney would lose one hand, but now there are hopes those fears will prove untrue.

Cloths in the varied colorings, from the palest tint of black, are the ultra smart materials for dressy and street gowns, while for evening pause velvet seems to have blossomed out afresh.

IRISH PARTY.

Committee Reports Upon Distribution of Parliamentary Work.

May Lead to Important Practical Results For the Country.

No Opportunity Should Be Lost of Raising All Irish Questions.

THE SUBJECTS TO BE DEALT WITH

The committee appointed by the Irish party at its first meeting "to consider and report upon a plan for the distribution of Parliamentary work among the members of the party" has just completed its work. The committee consisted of John Redmond, Chairman of the party; John Dillon, William O'Brien, Tim Harrington, Swift MacNeill, Edward Blake, Leamy and J. P. Hayden.

The following report was agreed upon: "With a view of utilizing the full force of the party in Parliamentary warfare we recommend that sessional standing committees of the party be appointed to deal with the following subjects, viz:

"First—Land and evicted tenants.
"Second—Congested districts.
"Third—Labor.
"Fourth—Town tenants.
"Fifth—Education.
"Sixth—Financial relations.
"Seventh—Administration.
"Eighth—Local government.
"Ninth—British affairs.
"Tenth—Foreign affairs.
"Eleventh—Private bill legislation.

"That the members to serve on these committees be selected by the Chairman and whips.

"That each committee be empowered to select its own Chairman and Secretary, and to name additional members to serve in reference to any particular subject.

"That the Chairman of the party be ex-officio member of all committees and preside at all meetings at which he is present."

The Dublin Independent in its leading editorial says:

"The idea underlying this scheme is by no means new. Readers of the history of the proceedings of the National Association of the United Kingdom will find it specified topics of public importance was an essential part of its plan of organization. Among the Chairmen of those committees were Thomas Davis and the Liberator's son, John O'Connell, and the records of the association largely consist of most valuable reports which were prepared by those committees, and which supplied exceptionally good pabulum for those members who were also members of the House of Commons, and who had to carry on the Irish debates in that assembly. Whether this precedent was present to the minds of the members of the existing Irish party whose recommendations are now in question we do not know, but whether it was or not, we repeat that the underlying idea is a good one, and quite practicable under certain conditions. Indeed those who are acquainted with the ways of Parliament must feel that a regular distribution of Parliamentary work such as is now suggested is necessary to its efficient performance. It is an old saying that what is everybody's business is nobody's business, and becomes either wholly neglected or is attended to in a haphazard and therefore fruitless way. When the work is divided and portions definitely arranged to specified persons, it may reasonably be hoped that a different result will be attained, especially in respect of securing that no opportunity will be lost of raising all Irish questions that press for immediate attention. Two conditions precedent, however, must be fulfilled. The proper men, in the first place, must be assigned to each department. On this point we are bound to say that if the Chairman of the party and the whips, as is suggested, be given the power of selection, a fair guarantee will be secured that the best choice available will be made. In the second place sufficient funds must be supplied for the maintenance of the members of the party at their posts. Whatever may be said as to certain incidents of the late election and as to certain events which preceded it and followed it, the Irish party now constituted will be taken to represent Ireland at Westminster, and it should be afforded a fair chance of realizing its programme. It will not receive that chance if it is lacking the means which ought to be at the disposal of every Parliamentary organization. If that means is forthcoming, then we have no hesitation in saying that the proposed distribution of Parliamentary work may well lead to important practical results for the country at large."

ANDREW JACKSON.

Next Tuesday evening the Hibernians will be given an intellectual treat at the meeting of Division 1. The exercises that were to be held in commemoration of Andrew Jackson some weeks ago will then take place. The principal address will be delivered by Newton G. Rogan, an able member of the Louisville press, who has recovered from the attack grip with which he was suffering.

STICK TO FACTS.

The question of union labor has been dragged into the gambling controversy, not that it is in any sense a part of the issue, and the facts are distorted, to which we object. Mr. Nunemacher may be right on the gambling question, but he does not run a union printing office, nor pay the union scale except when men are needed and he can not get cheaper labor; the Courier-Journal and Times may be wrong on the gambling question, but they do run union offices and pay the full union scale; Mayor Weaver may be wrong on the gambling question, but his record on union labor is all right so far as he had authority to act, the only complaints of union labor at the City Hall being due to those who are seeking to shift the blame on to Mayor Weaver. These are the facts, gentlemen, and you had better stick to the facts, or the effect on the workingmen will be the reverse of what you intend. The workingmen know more about those matters than you seem to. By the way, it would be still better to keep the labor question out of these political factional wrangles, with which it has not and does not want any connection. The workingmen will be very much obliged to you if you do, while they may curse you if you don't. Wise politicians are learning to let the workingmen alone.

UP AGAINST IT.

When a fellow resorts to his muscles to right his grievances gets the worst of it, and when a Judge does it he also makes himself contemptible. The people expect better things of a Judge. The assault by Judge Buckley on Editor Knott is denounced as it deserves. It was not only unwarranted, but Mr. Knott is not considered a fighter, besides he is a cripple, yet he gave the Judge the worst of it, and but for interference, would doubtless have given him the drubbing he deserved. Some people seem to have an idea that newspaper men can not fight as well as write. Judge Buckley seems to have belonged to that class, but has doubtless changed his mind in the past few days. Luck favor some folks, for had Judge Buckley attacked some newspaper men we know the result might have been more serious to him. Greater men than Judge Buckley have tried to bully the press, but failed. No newspaper man worthy of his calling can be bullied; he may, like other people, make mistakes, and, when approached in the proper way, correct them, but he will not be bullied. Newspaper men sometimes exaggerate, but newspaper men do not publish all they know about Judges and other people. If they did the world would be shocked; besides some things are unprintable—a fact that some kickers against the press forget.

ABOUT LYNCHING.

The burning at the stake of a negro in Kansas, following closely upon a similar act in Colorado and Texas and lynchings in other States, shocks the sensibilities. The press and ministers denounce outlawry and urge respect for the law; Governors issue proclamations and orders for the arrest and prosecution of the lynchers, and—there ends till the next lynching. The agitation and advice of the pulpit are right; the course of the Governors in endeavoring to protect the criminal, and in ordering the arrest and punishment of the lynchers is proper and in their line of duty. But while we do not approve of lynching, concede that it is in violation of law and morals, we protest that the outlawry is not with the lynchers. Lynching is not confined to any section of our country or class of our people; it has occurred in every part of it, and the participants are generally the respectable element, besides the fact that lynchers are not punished is due to the fact that the people will not furnish a jury to convict rather than any defect in the law which has been clearly and flagrantly violated. So that if lynchers are outlaws and lynching an evidence of outlawry, the American people who engage in it, tolerate it, fail to punish it when the law furnishes the means, are outlaws. A conclusion logical from the argument, but which as a fact we deny. On the contrary, the American people are the most obedient and respectful of the law of all people. Otherwise their Government, based on popular consent, and lacking arbitrary power and military force to sustain it, could not long exist.

But it is inherent in the American people to have, even if they have to fight for it, safety and protection of life, liberty and property, and they believe government and law are to give and guarantee them these things. So long as they are thus protected by the law there is no occasion to take the matter into its defects, or as is more common, officials by neglect, connivance, or juggling, fail to prevent or promptly punish crime, the American people swiftly and effectively do what would not have been necessary had the law and officials done their part. Besides outlawry brings a condition of crime; a lynching brings order, peace and safety to a community.

Lynching is wrong, but so long as the cause of it exists it will occur; remove the cause—prevent, suppress, punish crime by the prompt enforcement of law—and lynchings will cease.

AMERICANS AND BOERS.

The dispatches from South Africa, via London, give details of Dutch meetings adopting resolutions in opposition to continuing the war and favoring peace on the terms named in Gen. Kitchener's proclamation. As these meetings are held under British "protection," and the Boers keep on fighting, the dispatches are doubtless intended to cheer up the English at home with the idea that the people of the Dutch districts really oppose the Boer resistance and desire British control. This may deceive the ignorant. In this country, however, where it is no uncommon occurrence for a few men to hold meetings and adopt resolutions and protests in the name of the people—the people knowing nothing of them till published—such "popular demonstrations" have no effect.

Notwithstanding these reported meetings of the Dutch, the English are really on the defensive, not only in the Transvaal and Orange Free State, but throughout even the British provinces in South Africa, holding only the towns and main railway, practically besieged and frequently attacked, and even in Cape Town martial law prevails, military companies are being formed and drilled and plans arranged for defense in case of a possible attack, the Boers, who seem to be unopposed in the country, approaching nearer day by day. Kitchener, penned up in Pretoria, reiterates his appeal for more troops, seconded by Roberts in London, and all the British Ministry have their heads together to devise relief ere it is too late; their plans subverted by the rapid changes in the situation, the Boers being ever on the move, either defeating or eluding pursuers, disappearing and then hobbling up always stronger and nearer to the fortified British positions. It seems that London did well to indefinitely postpone the jubilee of the end of the Boer war. England is more at sea in South Africa than ever in her fifty years of conquest in that region, with no prospect of early victory but a possibility of defeat.

The Boer war, in some respects, is beginning to assume the features of the American Revolution in its second year; the British force in South Africa is much larger than it was at any time in America, but the Boers are also better armed, more united and disciplined than were the Americans; the British held the cities, the Americans were "roving bands" of rebels, just as the Boers were a few weeks ago; the Tories were opposed to the war and favored British rule, just as the "loyal Dutch" are reported in South Africa; the rebellion was "crushed," the leaders were refugees in the forests and swamps, several being captured and executed, villages and farm houses burned, just as the British are now doing in South Africa; the Americans were unable to show an army to give a battle, lacked arms, horses, artillery, even food, ammunition and clothing, but despite all this and the offers of amnesty and reward, persisted in their guerrilla warfare, at times combining their forces, striking a blow, scattering and vanishing, as the Boers are doing; the Americans had no fleet, their ports were held or blockaded by the enemy, were cut off from all supplies and war munitions, a disadvantage not affecting the Boers.

In this way the American Revolution went on, being reduced to hardship and suffering, as at Valley Forge; the dogged persistence of the American rebels finally defeated and captured the trained British armies. The Americans during these trying times sent representatives to Europe to appeal for aid, as the Boers are doing, but met with a like result—sympathy, but no nation dared give them recognition, not even France, though Lafayette was permitted to come to America with his followers and aid the rebels on their own responsibility, as Frenchmen and Americans are aiding the Boers. The Boers have the patriotism, courage and firmness of purpose of the American colonists; they have thus far resisted a larger, more thoroughly equipped army, commanded by able officers, and have maintained a better equipped and disciplined force and controlled their country against the invader than did the Americans. The Americans won liberty. May history be repeated and the Boers do likewise.

Were the local papers to pay the same respect to our merchants and business men that is shown them in other cities Louisville would be more prosperous. It would be indeed gratifying if they were to follow the example of the Cincinnati publication, whose excellent portrait of Col. John Whallen we reproduce on another page.

The Hibernians will soon be ready to announce their programme for the celebration of St. Patrick's day, and if they carry out their plans there will be real cause for congratulation.

There has been a lull in political affairs during the past week. Let us hope the Democrats will emerge from it again reunited.

Willie—Mamma, I dreamed last night papa gave me a bicycle and you gave me a watch. Mamma—Bnt, Willie, you know dreams go by contraries. Willie—Then you will give me the bicycle and papa the watch.

MARY AND HER DOLL.

Dear Dolly, Christmas came and went, It passed away somehow; Santa's gone; we must look back On dear old papa now. Santa came on Christmas eve And left a Christmas tree, But the sweetest thing I got that morn Was papa's kiss for me.

Santa brought me lots of things— He brought me this nice doll, One to Rose and Margaret, too, And brother James a ball. All his candies, pies and cakes, His turkey, goose and quail, Ain't half so sweet as what is left In papa's dinner pail.

He leaves a piece of bread and meat— Sometimes a piece of pie— 'Taint often—can't afford it, But that's 'twixt you and I. How we wait and watch for him When near the close of day, For we all know papa's footstep— Coming in the alleyway.

Now, Dolly dear, you go to sleep— Be as quiet as you can be; I want to sit a little while On my dear old daddy's knee. And then she murmured softly As we laid her down to rest, I love you, dear old Santa—but I love my papa best.

SOCIETY.

Bernard Tracy, of Winchester, was here for a few days this week.

Mrs. Haley, of Lexington, was the guest of friends here this week.

Miss Adelaide King has gone to Detroit, where she will spend several weeks with relatives.

Ben Maguire has returned from Danville, after spending some days visiting friends there.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. McDermott will entertain the Evening Euchre Club at its next meeting.

J. H. Mulligan, a well-known Lexingtonian, arrived here Tuesday to spend a few days visiting friends.

Miss Louise Madden, a popular Nashville belle, is expected here next week on a visit to Mrs. Byron Hilliard.

The handsome prizes at the Mackin Council euchre last week were awarded Mrs. Walker and Steve Harney.

Miss Marguerite Farrell, of Jeffersonville, has gone to Terre Haute to visit her sister, Mrs. Edward Rippetoe.

James Donahue and wife, of Davenport, who have been visiting here for several weeks, have gone to New York City.

Miss Mary Berry, a popular Lexington belle, is the guest of Miss Fannie Keller.

Miss Mary Lyons, who has been spending several weeks with friends here, left Monday for her home in Lawrenceburg.

Mrs. George Kavanaugh will arrive next week from Cohoes to visit her mother, Mrs. Rickman, 109 West Oak street.

Hon. Hugh O'Connor, of Corydon, Ind., passed through the city this week on his way to New Orleans to visit relatives.

John Raidy, whose illness has been heretofore noted, is still confined to his home on West Main street, though somewhat improved.

The marriage of Miss Estella Ryan, daughter of J. J. Ryan, and Roy Hagan, of Larue county, is announced to take place in February.

Miss Ada Ryan, popular in Jeffersonville society circles, will leave the first of next week for Scottsburg, where she has many admirers.

Miss Tena Richter's friends will rejoice to learn that there has been a decided improvement in her condition and her recovery seems now assured.

The many friends of Miss Mamie Miller, of 1520 West Madison street, will be pleased to hear that she is out again after a three weeks' illness.

The many friends of Miss Nelly Carroll will regret to learn that she is dangerously ill at Middlesboro, where she has made her home with relatives since leaving Louisville.

Miss Bertha O'Hara, a popular New Albany belle and society favorite, was one of the prize winners at the recent Hibernian euchre for St. Edward's Hospital. Her name was inadvertently omitted.

Miss Kate Cain's Jeffersonville friends were glad to learn that she was able to sit up for a short time Thursday, and that her speedy recovery may now be looked for. She was for a time very seriously ill.

A delightful euchre was given Tuesday evening at Trinity Hall in New Albany by the Young Ladies' Club. It was a grand social success. Prizes were won by Misses Mamie Vernia, Louis Burke, Bertha O'Hara and Mr. Vernia.

One of this season's most largely attended Lexington weddings was that of Miss Mary Kerr and J. B. Kelly, which was solemnized Wednesday afternoon. Both are prominent in the best society circles of the Bluegrass capital.

The Entre Nous Club, composed of some of New Albany's leading society favorites, has elected the following officers: Miss Nell Hannan, President; Miss Laura McMullen, Secretary; Miss Frances Meley, Treasurer. Their social gatherings are always most enjoyable and becoming more and more popular.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and their Ladies' Division are arranging for their annual reception and hop, which takes place at Liederkranz Hall on Wednesday evening, February 6. These annual affairs are always enjoyable, and those fortunate enough to receive invitations should attend.

A pretty wedding was that solemnized at St. Boniface church Wednesday morning, when Miss Catherine Lautz became the bride of Joseph Steinhart, of Madison, Ind. The young couple were attended by Miss Lillian Kooper and George Lautz, and the ceremony was witnessed by large numbers of friends and relatives. The bride and groom will make their future home in Madison.

Among the most attractive of the January marriages was that celebrated with nuptial mass at the Church of Our Lady in Portland last Monday morning, when Miss Florence Bannan and Herman Deutsch were united for life, Rev. Father Cunliff performing the ceremony. Both are well known young people of the West End. The church was crowded with their friends, who showered them with congratulations.

A most enjoyable reception and party was given by Byron Shreve Tuesday night at his home, 3126 Third street, by his friends in honor of his seventeenth birthday anniversary. Among those present were: Misses Ambie Shreve, Julia Maguire, Stella McGrath, Annie and Lena Smith, Cecilia Maguire, Ollic Mitchell, Nellie Gould, Rose and Maud Shreve and Maud Finley; Messrs. Jesse McQuady, James McGrath, Walter and James Nance, Robert McCann, William Day, Willie Milton and Byron Shreve.

About 300 persons were entertained Thursday evening by F. H. Bruens at the opening of the Montebello Cafe, Third and Avery avenues, which has become a very fashionable resort among the residents and visitors to the southern part of the city. The genial proprietor served his guests an elegant banquet, to which was added a fine musical programme. All were delighted with the many improvements made during the past few months, and now declare Montebello Cafe the real place for ladies and gentlemen.

RETROSPECTIVE.

Universal Church in America During the Century Just Ended.

If there be any fact that stands out in bold relief in the checkered course of the Nineteenth century, challenging the wonder of the whole world of thought, it is the Catholic Church. And, indeed, were there no other proof of her heavenly origin and supernatural guidance, her marvelous career during the era just closed would assuredly stamp her as divine.

At the beginning of the late century she hunted in many lands. In Ireland, for instance, the priest and his flock were just emerging from the catacombs, so to speak. And though, for eighteen years previous, Ireland had a Parliament of her own, it was exclusively a Protestant Parliament. Catholics were debarred therefrom and Catholic emancipation was antagonized by even such sterling patriots as Henry Flood. It was twenty-one years later that the freedom of Catholic worship was officially recognized, when the long-riveted chains were smashed by the giant O'Connell.

In England, with rare exceptions, the Catholics were few and poor. It took fifty years more to re-establish the hierarchy there, and the tolerated little chapels of Catholic worship were confined to dark alleys and backward streets. What a change when the vitality and divine attraction of Rome drew to the poor despised Church in the British Isles the radiant hosts of the Tractarian movement, headed by Newman, Manning, Wilberforce, Faber and the rest—the flower of the English universities and the glory of Anglican Protestantism. Referring to those marvelous conversions in England, Gladstone, more in sorrow than in anger, declared that when Newman fell (?) he drew down with him a third of the Anglican heavens!

In France—yes, the France of St. Louis and the gentle Genevieve—the Church was still hated and the Cross still cursed, for the streets of Paris were yet stained by the streaming blood of the Revolution, when Marat, Robespierre, Danton and others, like so many furies from hell, publicly blasphemed God, turned the beautiful city into reeking shambles where were murdered, amid horrible oaths, France's noblest sons and daughters, and placed upon the high altar of Notre Dame a notorious prostitute for the homage of all people.

As for Germany—the Germany of Luther and most of the blessed "reformers"—the Church had then no place in that evangelical land. Today she is a factor of power to be reckoned with in Luther's land, and in matters of state holds the balance of power.

At the beginning of the Nineteenth century, outside the Maryland of the Calverts, Catholics were few and for the most part obscure. The intolerant spirit of the Puritans would have them not, and pursued "popery" wherever it found it with the same dark hatred that animated Cromwell's soul.

Contrast those crude outlines of the condition of the Church in the lands we have mentioned with the position she holds in those countries today and will not the bitter enemy of the Catholic name be compelled to exclaim: "Verily the finger of God seems to be with Rome, else the See of Peter which has ruled the spiritual world for nineteen hundred years would long ago have been swept from the world."—Catholic Union and Times.

Working for the good of all to secure good for self is enlightened selfishness.

IRELAND.

Record of the Most Important of the Recent Events Culled From Exchanges.

William O'Brien has been seriously ill and confined to his bed for over a week, suffering from an attack of pleurisy. The Cork corporation has refused to have night sittings, and the labor members are somewhat put out over the action.

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland has appointed Lieut. Col. J. F. Ross, of Bladensburg, to succeed J. J. Jones as Chief Commissioner of the Dublin metropolitan police. In order to defray the expenses incurred in connection with St. Patrick's new church at Gortin, County Tyrone, a fancy fair is being organized by the ladies of the place.

After a search lasting since Christmas morning the body of a man named John Fitzgibbon, who disappeared mysteriously on Christmas eve, was found lying at the bottom of the Royal canal harbor, Mullingar. A destructive fire broke out at Goldenbridge saw mills, owned by Messrs. Braxington & Sons. The mill was completely gutted. The damage is estimated at $10,000, which is partly covered by insurance.

In about three months the census of Ireland will be taken, and local branches of the Gaelic League are urged to activity toward safeguarding the rights of the language in a return which will be official for the next ten years.

At a meeting of the Tipperary County Council at Nenagh it was decided to put in force the provisions of the agricultural and technical instruction act. The Very Rev. Dean White made a strong speech in favor of the motion.

A marriage has been arranged and will shortly take place between Frank E. Mahou, manager of the Munster and Leinster Bank, Killarney, and Katie Mary Stuart Cox, daughter of the late Robert Cox, of Ballingarry, County Limerick.

At the weekly meeting of the South Dublin Union Guardians, Joseph Mooney presiding, it was decided that the limit of age of the assistant master, who will be appointed shortly, must not exceed fourteen years, and that the salary shall be $500 a year.

At the meeting of the Mullingar Guardians Dr. Thomas J. Fox was elected medical officer for the Milltownpass Dispensary. There was only the one application, and this was the third election of a doctor for this dispensary district within the past couple of years.

As the result, it is alleged, of a drunken quarrel a man named Michael Sheehy was killed by being stabbed with a pen-knife in Dublin. Three brothers named respectively Michael, James and John Green are in custody charged with the murder of the deceased.

by the last sacraments, assisted in her dying moments by her nephew, Very Rev. Canon McNeese, of Magherafelt.

THEATRICALS.

"A Texas Steer," a play aiming higher than any other of Hoyt's many farce comedies, full of overflowing with fun and merriment, comes to the Avenue next week. This play deals in the happiest way with politics, and as it is absolutely non-partisan, all parties are pleased whether they live in or out of, by or for, interested or disgusted with politics. The return one gets from attendance at a Hoyt play is a most pleasurable one, since laughter and merriment are sure to rule the hour. In the present offering, with abundance of pleasure, there is something more, something to take away and consider, in the senseless hits at political shortcomings.

Next week will occur what should be the important event of the season at the Temple Theater, when the "Arabian Nights" will be seen for the first time here for years. The play will be finely put on, and one could not wish for a better performance than will be given by the Meffert-Eagle Stock Company. The vaudeville attractions for next week will also prove immense drawing cards.

The new artists are Platt and Sutherland, musical sketch artists of the highest order, and Aaronson and Ashton, aerial performers, who do some thrilling feats. The polycope, which has pleased so many during the past few weeks, will show some pictures of special interest to Louisville people, including a series showing the local fire department responding to an alarm. Messrs. Meffert and Eagle are now treating their patrons to the best performances ever given anywhere at popular prices, and their present company far surpasses many of those who are advertised as star attractions.

The standing room sign will doubtless be needed next week, and those who desire good seats should visit the box office immediately, as the advance sale is very large.

Next week Irwin's big show will hold the boards at the Buckingham and present one of those up-to-date burlesques and vaudeville bills for which this company is noted. This season's selection of vaudeville and burlesque artists, comedians, chorus girls, singers and dancers, the two burlesques which serve to display the full strength of the company to the best advantage and all the stage accessories, such as scenery, costumes and electrical effects, are anything on a more elaborate scale than any previous season, and the performance has been winning praise and applause wherever it has been presented. The special feature of the vaudeville portion of the bill is the marvelous Cornall family of eight, in which are two small tots, a girl of four and a boy of six, who in themselves are worth the price of admission. In the comedy line there are Barney Bernard and Billy Watson, who stand at the head of all dialect comedians. Their united efforts form a very pleasing bit of diversion, replete with most wholesome humor, keen repartee and witty parodies. There is another comedy treat in the sketch of the Brownings, "A Merry Tramp," which is an original creation and always serves to keep an audience in the jolliest of humor.

Phil Morton, the well known Irish comedian, also appears in a monologue specialty, brimful of comic sayings and funny melodies. The pleasing vocalist, Grace Mantell, will sing some of the latest descriptive ballads, which will be illustrated with realistic views. To close the olio a number of interesting animated views will be shown by the king of moving picture machines, the cinetoscope. The performance opens with a merry satire on the raging electric craze, entitled "The Man with the Funny Touch," and the closing number is a race-track review, called "A Good Thing." The entire company appears in this skit.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing the Past Week—General News Notes.

Treasurer Butler's report shows division 3 on a sound financial basis. Division 4 will have several members to initiate Wednesday night. Joe McGinn was an interested visitor at the meeting of Division 3 Wednesday evening.

Division 1 of Richmond, Va., has arranged for a banquet in conjunction with the annual ball.

Division 11 of Providence holds its annual reunion January 30 and its grand ball in February.

There are now seventeen divisions organized in San Francisco, and all are reported doing well.

John J. Rogers has been re-elected President of the Worcester Hibernian Building Association.

Division 50 and Ladies' Auxiliary 14 of Boston are arranging for a union concert and ball Easter week.

Division 35 of Worcester at its last meeting initiated six members and received seven applications.

There will be a monster parade in Worcester, Mass., on St. Patrick's day, when the new building will be dedicated.

Hibernians when visiting Limerick are always royally treated by John Hickey, who is a member of Division 4.

Division 6 of Providence increased its membership twenty during the past year and has a balance of over $1,800 in the treasury.

There now are thirty-one divisions of the Ladies' Auxiliary in Boston and vicinity. There is not an auxiliary in Kentucky.

The members of Division 1 of New Albany contemplate receiving holy communion in a body on the morning of St. Patrick's day.

Don't forget that the proceedings will prove interesting next Tuesday night. President Dolan invites all members of the order to be present to hear Newton G. Rogers.

The first annual ball of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Newton, Mass., will take place February 8 in Armory Hall, when they hope to carry off the social honors of the season.

Hibernian Hall has been secured by the Daughters of Erin of Providence for a grand social Easter Monday night. The woman of the East are just as progressive as the men.

There was an unusually large attendance at the meeting of Division 3 Wednesday night. Officer William Lawler occupied the Vice Presidential chair with dignity and ability.

The next meeting of Division 2 will be an important one. Applicants from the East End and on the hill should always remember that among its members are many of the leading men of those localities.

Division 3 will hereafter meet at Nineteenth and Portland avenue on the first and third Monday nights of each month. All hope the change will prove beneficial and increase the membership to the largest in the city.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Division 6 of Providence held their first meeting of the new year last Sunday evening, and the exercises were most agreeably extended by the addition of social exercises and the serving of light refreshments.

The Kentucky Irish American was this week favored with a visit from Vice President Winn, of New Albany, who spoke encouragingly of the outlook for his division. President Walsh and Secretary O'Hara are still initiating new members.

SPORTY ITEMS.

As predicted in this column some months ago, the eyes of many who earn their money in the fistic arena are now turned toward Louisville.

Many think Louisville baseball interests would be better served at the meetings of the magnates were they represented by John McClosky rather than Harry Pulliam.

Tommy Hogan, who has been claiming English championship honors, made a miserable showing Tuesday night at Memphis. Oscar Gardner put him out in the sixth round with a stiff punch in the chin.

Billy Smith is the latest aspirant for the title now held by Terry McGovern. Smith went from this country to England about a year ago, but while there he has done nothing to cause us to lose faith in the Brooklyn boy.

As the season approaches there is a revival of baseball talk, and rumors of all kinds are afloat. From the most reliable reports, however, it would appear that Louisville will yet be represented in the new American Association.

The Twentieth Century Club of San Francisco would like to arrange another match between McGovern and Frank Erne, the bout to take place this spring. There are surface indications that its efforts will prove successful.

Twenty-five Governors have declared they will not allow the Jeffries-Kuhlin fight to take place in their States. Gov. Beckham was non-committal, and the Governor of Nevada says contests to a finish may be pulled off there under special provisions.

VERDICT FOR TREASY.
The suit for damages brought by Thos. F. Treasy against Corporal William Pfeiffer and Patrolman Alvis Horn for false arrest was tried in the Law and Equity Court this week. The jury returned a verdict awarding Mr. Treasy $250 damages. The defense was represented by Col. Bennett Young, who made a poor plea for his client.
SEEKS CATHOLIC FAITH.
Mrs. Hurst, the divorced wife of Bishop Hurst, of Washington, is now in Paris studying the tenets of the Catholic church, with a view to becoming a member. She has just come from Rome, where she was received in public audience by the Pope. Mrs. Hurst was accompanied by Mrs. Robinson Duff, of Chicago. Both were present at the ceremony of closing the Holy Door of St. Peter's. When asked what impressed her most, Mrs. Hurst replied: "The bright eyes of the aged Pontiff burning in almost a lifeless body."

LADIES ENLIST
 Their Services For the Celebration of Emmet's Anniversary.
 Committees Appointed Thursday Night by President Joe Nevlin.
 Gold Watches Offered as Premiums to Young Ladies and Gentlemen.

PROGRAMME NOW BEING ARRANGED.
 There was a fair sprinkling of ladies present at Thursday night's meeting of the Irish-American Society when President Joe Nevlin took the chair.
 Messrs. Thomas Hannan, Phil McGovern and Thomas Doyle were initiated, and Capt. Jerry Hallahan was elected a member. Applications were received from B. Foley and Jerry Quillan.
 The committee having in charge the arrangements for the observance of Robert Emmet's anniversary reported gratifying progress, the members having already disposed of sufficient tickets to insure success.
 The Executive committee recommended that two committees composed of ladies be appointed to prepare vocal and instrumental features and arrange for the dancing and cake walk. The following were named:
 Dancing and Cake Walk—Mesdames William M. Higgins, Thomas Tarpey, Thomas Connell, Tom Keenan, Joseph Nevlin, Mrs. Joe Byrne, John Mulloy and Misses Rose Francis and Anna Nalty.
 Vocal and Instrumental Music—Mrs. Phil McGovern, Miss Mary Higgins, Mesdames John J. Flynn, Thomas Claire and William Lawler.
 The following ladies were named to have charge of the gold watches which are to be distributed among the young ladies selling tickets. There is no contest, as each one selling 150 tickets will receive a watch: Mesdames William Patterson, Thomas Cleary, Pat Connaughton, John Garrity, John Holden, D. H. Russell, Edward J. O'Brien, John H. Whalen, John Mulverhill, Thomas Shelly and Jeff. Bannon.
 The following will have charge of the distribution of the watches among the gentlemen: Messrs. John J. Sullivan, William Baldwin, John Mulloy, Pat Grogan, Phil McGovern, Jeff. Bannon, John Kennedy and John Mulverhill.
 President Nevlin, Tom Tarpey, Jeff. Bannon, John J. Sullivan, Secretary Flynn, and others made interesting talks and aroused considerable enthusiasm.
 The ladies will hold a joint meeting next Thursday evening at the residence of Mrs. William M. Higgins, 1530 West Madison street, and afterward make their report at the next meeting of the Irish-American Society, Thursday night, February 7.

CONVERSIONS.
 Great Works Done by Rev. Albert Stroebels in Taylor County.
 Commencing December 23 successful missions were given at Campbellsville, Finley and Spurlington, Taylor county, each lasting nine days, by Rev. Albert Stroebels, formerly of St. Augustine's church, Fourteenth and Broadway, whose attractive Tuesday services in honor of St. Anthony at the colored Catholic church about two years ago are still remembered by hundreds of people in this city.
 At the missions just given by Father Stroebels numerous converts were received into the church, most of them being young men who seemed to take a special interest in the plain instructions given by the missionary on the beauties of the Catholic church compared with the emptiness and coldness of the others.

SOON TO BE FREE.
 Fiscal Court Has Begun Purchase of the County Turnpikes.
 The Fiscal Court last Wednesday afternoon took the first steps toward purchasing the turnpikes of Jefferson county and asking them free to the public. Two were bought, the Preston-street and Bardotown roads, after which court adjourned until next Wednesday, when the owners of the remainder, eight or nine in number, are expected to agree to the terms proposed by the court officers.
 This movement for free roads has been agitated by John Kelly for several years past, and were it not for his untiring zeal and perseverance the farming community might have been deprived of its advantages for some time to come. Free turnpikes will prove advantageous to Louisville, because the residents of the county may enter and leave without being bothered about paying toll. It is expected that all will be free by February 1.
FORTY HOURS.
 Forty hours' devotions will take place next week at St. Vincent de Paul's church, beginning at the high mass tomorrow and ending Tuesday morning. Similar services will take place Sunday, January 27, at St. Martin's and St. Augustine's churches in this city.
 On some of the dark cloth gowns unusual effects in trimming are made by an applique design cut out of cloth in a lighter shade and embroidered with chenille around the edges.

HOME.
 There's a charm around the place
 Called home that no other knows;
 It has a fragrance and wears a grace
 All its own, like the peerless rose.
 The sound of its name is music grand,
 Thrilling like the melody of love,
 The sanctuary of hearts in every land—
 Type of our "Home, Sweet Home," above.
 Be it'er so humble or plain,
 Mid whatever grandeur we roam,
 All hearts echo the sweet refrain—
 Home—there's no place like home.

RECENT DEATHS.
 Patrick Heslin, aged sixty-six, for many years past a well known and respected resident of Limerick, died Saturday morning at his home on St. Catherine street. His funeral occurred Monday morning from the Dominican church, many people attending the services.
 Mrs. Ann C. Watson, aged seventy-two years, died January 14, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. L. Heady, Taylorville, Ky. Mrs. J. Watson was educated at Nazareth Academy, Nelson county, and was a lady highly esteemed throughout the State. Her husband and eight children survive her. The funeral and burial took place at Fairfield last Tuesday.
 Michael Connelly, one of Limerick's oldest and most respected citizens, died last Tuesday morning at his residence, Seventh and Oldham streets, after an illness of several months. The deceased leaves a wife and five children. The funeral took place from St. Louis Bertrand's church Thursday morning with a requiem mass for the repose of his soul. The interment was in St. Louis cemetery.
 With sincere regret we announce the death of Miss Theresa Heery, which occurred at an early hour last Saturday morning at her home, 725 West St. Catherine street, after a brief illness. She was the sister of Michael Heery and one of the best known and most highly respected young ladies in the southern part of the city. Her demise caused inexpressible grief among her wide circle of friends and acquaintances, through whom called at the home to express their sympathy with her relatives. Miss Heery was a devout member of the Dominican church, where her funeral occurred Monday morning with solemn requiem mass. The impressive services being largely attended.

The announcement of the sudden death of Peter Hart last Sunday morning was a shock to the hosts of friends and acquaintances of one of the best known Irishmen in the East End, where he had resided for more than half a century. The deceased, who was seventy-five years old, was amusing his grandchild when he was stricken with heart disease. Mr. Hart was the father of Mrs. John Glenn, with whom he resided at 1418 Payne street, and it is said was singing an Irish song to her little ones when the fatal stroke came. His funeral took place Tuesday morning from St. Aloysius' church, and the large attendance at the impressive obsequies attested the high esteem in which he was held by people of all classes.
PAYING TAXES.
 All city tax bills have been made out and many are now settling with Tax Receiver Camp. About 40,000 notifications have been sent out. A discount of 3 per cent will be allowed all who pay before February 13.
WANTS ANOTHER TERM.
 Alf Oldham, Clerk of the City Police Court, has announced his candidacy for re-election. His administration has been quite popular, and those who enter the race will find him a good runner. The improved condition of the system and records of that office were introduced by him.

CONSTERNATION.
 Great Britain's Terrible Plight in Africa Puts London in Panic.
 Kitchener's Vast Army Paralyzed, With Boers Acting on Offensive.
 All Sorts of Proposals of Raising Fresh Levies of Volunteers.

THE STAMPEDE FROM CAPE TOWN
 The appalling developments in the South African situation are causing the deepest consternation in London, says the World's cable dispatches. It is now nearly three months since the British army found it possible to act on the offensive, while every day there are fresh accounts of the daring tactics of the Boers, who are acting upon a plan conceived with consummate skill and executed with amazing intrepidity and resource to cut off Lord Kitchener's communications with both the Cape and Natal.
 The position of affairs in Cape Colony is wrapped in mystery owing to the scantiness of the information passed by the censor, but it is divined from the general purport of the news that the immediate outlook is of the gravest possible character. All manner of panicky proposals are printed for raising fresh levies of volunteers here, including a suggested summons to the City Imperial Volunteers, but Kitchener's need is capable mounted riflemen, for 40,000 of whom he urgently appealed immediately after Lord Roberts resigned his command.
 The Government is able to do nothing yet to meet this need, though it is stated that orders have been issued to release every mounted regular at home and in the colonies and for immediate transport to Cape Town. The determination to subdue the Boers at all costs is expressed as resolutely as ever, but there is none of the enthusiasm displayed a year ago, and recruiting has fallen to the lowest point in a quarter of a century.
 The history of the American colonies is repeating itself with fatal fidelity. Delegates from the Afrikaner Bond are coming to appeal against the continuance of a policy calculated to lead to the loss of South Africa, as delegates came from America. The Afrikaner emissaries are informed by the war press and party that their mission is a fool's errand, as were the American delegates in former days.
 The paralysis of Kitchener's vast and scattered army is apparently complete and in gloomy contrast to the incessant, unchecked activity of the Boers. Soldiers' letters home have been stopped and the officers' letters are rigorously censored, owing to the bad impression created by their spiritless, depressed tenor.
 It is officially rumored that Kitchener is developing a scheme for crushing the Boer commandoes in Cape Colony, but confidence has been shaken in the efficacy of his tactics. A perfect stampede of wealthy South Africans is taking place from Cape Town, where enormous premiums are offered for passages home, not only in liners but even on cargo steamers.

HAPPY UNION.
 Eugene J. Cooney and Miss Anna R. Schwaniger to Wed.
 Among the many New Year weddings none will attract more attention than that of Eugene J. Cooney and Miss Anna R. Schwaniger, now announced for the first time, which will be solemnized at St. Mary's church, Eighth and Grayson streets, on Wednesday afternoon, January 30, at 3 o'clock, Rev. Father Westerman uniting the happy young people.
 The bride is the lovely daughter of Joseph Schwaniger, the retired shoe merchant, residing at 607 West Chestnut street, and is very popular among her wide circle of friends and acquaintances. She is also well known to the patrons of Klein & Son, Fourth avenue, where for several years she officiated as chief saleslady, among whom she was greatly admired for her amiable disposition and pleasing traits of character.
 Eugene Cooney is among the rising young men on Main street, having held the position of Secretary of the Produce Shippers' Dispatch since its organization two years ago. He is Secretary of the Catholic Union, a prominent member of Trinity Council and among the best known young men in the East End.
 The ceremony will attract large numbers from all parts of the city. Messrs. Mike Hill, Joseph Schwaniger, Henry Thompson and Will Doll have been selected for ushers. After the ceremony the happy pair will be the guests of honor at a reception and wedding dinner at the home of the bride's parents, then leaving for a two weeks' honeymoon trip to Washington and New York. Upon their return they will go to housekeeping at 904 East Jefferson street, where they will receive their numerous friends.

ANOTHER FIRE FIGHTER.
 Martin McNally, a well known and popular young Irishman who for some time past has been connected with the local fire department, was appointed by the Board of Safety to a regular position last Tuesday. Martin will make a brave and courageous fire fighter, and his countless friends rejoice over his deserved recognition.
 The kilted skirt is in prospect again, if reports are true, but no doubt it will be an improved edition of the old one when it does come.
